Introduction

The information in this guide is intended for customers working with an adviser. If you are reading this without the help of an adviser, we recommend you take financial advice to help you decide on your appropriate investment approach.

The investment funds described in this guide are available to existing investors through Sterling's Individual Savings Account and Investment Account. These accounts are medium to long-term investment contracts, typically of five to ten years.

Full details of these accounts, including the charges and their effect on investment returns, are shown in the Key Features Document and Sterling charges summary documents. Full terms and conditions are available on our website.

You can choose from a range of Sterling Panel funds and Scottish Widows Platform funds.

Sterling Panel funds

The funds that feature on the Sterling Panel are chosen carefully. Although this is no guarantee of good performance outcomes, we believe it is important to focus upon fund management companies with appropriate resources, processes and controls. As always, customers should be aware that the value of investments, and the level of income generated by them, can fall as well as rise.

We undertake a process of regular review of featured funds and may remove or add funds at any time. Any changes to the Panel fund range will be communicated in "Investment Matters" and this Guide will be updated to reflect the changes.

The Sterling Panel fund range also includes a number of Distributor requested funds. These funds are added to the Panel fund range at the request of a Distributor and are only available via the Distributor listed. The Distributor requested funds are required to meet the same review criteria as all other Sterling Panel funds.

Details of the range of Sterling Panel funds are available in this guide and their charges are detailed in the Sterling charges summary which is available from your adviser.

Scottish Widows Platform Funds

You can also choose from a range of Scottish Widows Platform funds for extra choice. These might be suitable where the Sterling Panel funds don't meet your needs or you want to widen your investment portfolio.

We do not apply the same selection process, and do not review these funds in the same way we review the Sterling Panel funds.

Details of the range of Scottish Widows Platform funds are available from your adviser.

For details of the fund objectives and risks associated with the platform funds, please refer to the relevant simplified prospectus and Key Investor Information Document (KIID) all of which are available from your adviser. Fund fact sheets and the platform funds charges summary are available from your adviser.

Investment returns

By their very nature investment returns of Sterling Panel and Scottish Widows Platform funds cannot be guaranteed. You should not use past performance as a suggestion of future performance. It should not be the main or sole reason for making an investment decision. The value of investments and any income from them can fall. You may not get back the amount you invested.

Investment choice and flexibility

A key ingredient of any investment strategy is choosing investment funds that suit your objectives, with the flexibility to change them if your circumstances or objectives change. We offer a wide range of investment funds covering different areas of the world's stock markets and economies. With the help of your adviser, you can put together and maintain a portfolio that suits your needs.

The funds we offer are all authorised Unit Trusts, Open Ended Investment Companies (OEICs) or Investment Companies with Variable Capital (ICVCs).

Unit trusts, OEICs and ICVCs are 'Collective Investment Schemes' which means many people invest in the same fund and collectively buy a wider spread of investments than they could buy individually. This reduces the risk because the spread of investments means the fund is less vulnerable to the poor performance of any single investment.

We offer a range of funds to choose from which are managed by a number of different fund managers. The fund managers are responsible for:

- Managing the fund and taking all investment decisions about buying and selling securities within the fund
- Making sure the fund is managed in line with its objectives and meets all regulatory and legal requirements
- Setting the fund charges and any alterations to the charges within the limits set out in the fund documentation.

Through the investment funds available you can invest in a wide range of countries, economies and market sectors, spreading your investment across many different assets.

This provides exposure to many investment opportunities and helps to reduce the risk associated with investing in a single company.

It must be borne in mind that the value of investments and any income they produce can fall and you may not get back the amount you invested.

We provide a range of managed and multimanagered funds, some specifically tailored to suit different investors' attitudes to risk.

Alternatively, you may invest in specific UK, international or specialist funds reflecting your own preferences and objectives.

We don't provide advice on the suitability of any particular fund. You must seek advice from your adviser before you decide which funds to invest in.

The Panel features a broad range of funds that are suited to different investment needs and risk requirements. We may add or remove funds at any time. You can obtain an up-to-date list of funds by contacting your adviser.

Details of the range of Sterling Panel funds are available in this guide and their charges are detailed in the Sterling charges summary which is available from your adviser.

This guide is updated every three months.

Up-to-date fund factsheets are available via the "Fund Research" option when you log in to Scottish Widows Platform.

If you do not have a user name for the Scottish Widows Platform, please contact us so we can set one up for you.

Fund risks

All investment funds carry an element of risk. The funds have different levels of risk, from the more cautious to the more adventurous, and different levels of investment performance:

- Over time a fund that invests mostly in shares is likely to offer greater potential for higher returns than a fund investing in cash deposits, but with it come greater fluctuations in value. A fund with a high proportion of fixed interest securities is more likely to produce lower returns with more stability.
- Certain funds, typically investing in fixed-interest securities tend to be more suited for a shorter-term investment or as part of a personalised portfolio designed to achieve an overall balance of risk and potential return. Investing solely in these funds for the longer-term may result in a lower return than a bank or building society savings account.
- Some funds make use of derivatives to achieve an overall risk profile. A derivative is an asset issued by financial institutions and its value is usually linked to another asset or index. When the derivative matures, the financial institution pays out an agreed value. Ultimately, though, if the financial institution is not able to meet its obligations, the derivative may be worthless and the fund's value will reduce as a result.
- If you invest in a fund that is part of an Open Ended Investment Company (OEIC) or Investment Company with Variable Capital (ICVC), in the exceptional event of another fund within that structure being unable to meet its liabilities, those liabilities may be allocated to the fund you are invested in, reducing its value.
- The rate of income on fixed interest securities such as corporate bonds and government bonds won't increase in line with inflation unless they are index-linked. So, over time, the real value of the income they produce is likely to fall. The value of these investments is affected by interest rate changes and is likely to fall if long-term interest rates rise.
- Specific risks that may adversely affect the value of investments within a fund include exchange rate fluctuations and dealing in relatively less mature markets, such as Eastern Europe, Central and South America and some areas of the Far East.
- If you choose a fund that invests in overseas assets, changes in exchange rates between currencies may also cause the value of your investment to fall or rise.
- Funds which specialise or concentrate their investment in specific regions, sectors (such as smaller companies or emerging markets) or in a smaller number of shares can result in greater fluctuations in value. Funds that invest in a wider range of sectors are likely to carry less risk.
- Dealing in and out of a fund may be suspended in extreme circumstances.
- High yield bond funds tend to invest in high yielding corporate bonds, which are generally higher risk investments than government bonds or lower yielding corporate bonds.
- Funds that specialise in gold-mining shares tend not to follow stock market movements.
- Funds investing in the shares of smaller companies, in a concentrated portfolio of shares, or in a less mature market (such as Eastern Europe, some areas of the Far East, Central and South America) carry more investment risk.
- In some less developed stock markets there are risks from political, economic and market factors that could cause a large increase in currency and fund price risk.
- Some fund managers take their yearly management charge from capital rather than income. This results in a higher income but lower capital growth.

Managed funds

Managed funds give exposure to a wide range of investment opportunities and aim to reduce the risk of your capital because they are not held to the fortunes of just one market.

A managed fund allows you to invest in a range of countries and market sectors, spreading your investment across different types of assets. The fund manager is able to adjust the asset allocation of the fund in anticipation of changing market conditions. The funds benefit from two layers of investment management as the fund manager takes account of the opportunities in the world's major economies and then selects what they consider to be the best investments within those markets. We offer a number of portfolios specifically tailored to suit different attitudes to risk.

Multimanaged funds

These funds add another level of management from managed funds. The fund manager chooses investment managers to run different parts of the portfolio. This enables the funds to combine differing skills across the market from the style of the manager to managing different investment types. We offer a number of portfolios specifically tailored to suit different attitudes to risk.

Fixed-interest funds

Governments and companies borrow money from investors as a way to raise funds. In turn they issue securities known as ‘bonds’ or ‘gilts’ if they are loans to a government. In return for the loan, an agreed rate of interest is paid until a set date. These securities can be traded (bought or sold) before the set date. Often referred to as fixed-interest investments, these types of funds are expected to produce lower but more stable returns than equity funds. Fixed-interest funds tend to be more suited for shorter-term investment or as part of a personalised portfolio invested to achieve an overall balance of risk and potential return. Investing solely in the funds for the longer-term may result in a lower return than a bank or building society savings account.

The rate of income on fixed-interest securities such as corporate bonds and government bonds won't increase in line with inflation unless they are index-linked. So, over time the real value of the income they produce is likely to fall. The value of these investments is affected by interest rate changes and is likely to fall if long-term interest rates rise. They may also fall if a company or bank the fund invests in becomes insolvent or is unable to make the payments they have agreed to. High yield bond funds tend to invest in high yielding corporate bonds, which are generally higher risk investments than government bonds or lower yielding corporate bonds.

Money market funds

These types of fund tend to be more suited for the shorter-term investment or as part of a personalised portfolio invested to achieve an overall balance of risk and potential return. They are only available with the Investment Account.

Investing solely in these funds for the longer term may result in a lower return than a bank or building society account, or a return lower than inflation. In the longer term the returns of money market funds are generally expected to be lower than those from equity funds.

In some circumstances there can be a fall in value. For example, when interest rates are low returns may be less than the charges. If a company or bank that the Fund invests in becomes insolvent, or is unable to make payments they have to agreed to, the value of the Fund could also fall.

Money market funds

Money market funds invest in a much broader range of money market instruments (compared to deposit and treasury funds) and seek to obtain a higher return, although this carries an increased risk of the Fund value falling. Money market instruments include commercial paper and floating rate notes. Commercial paper is short-term unsecured notes issued by a company or bank. A floating rate note is an instrument whose interest payment varies with short-term interest rates. These types of money market instruments are debt instruments that produce an income and can be traded (bought and sold). Their value when traded can fall and rise between the time of purchase and their maturity date. Their value will depend on comparable rates of interest achieved in the market place and the financial security and credit worthiness of the underlying institution the loan has been made to. This tends to mean the value of these instruments can fall and rise more than other near cash assets. When an overseas money market instrument is used it will often be hedged¹ back into sterling currency to reduce risk of foreign exchange fluctuations affecting its value.

Legal & General Cash	LQ61	B0CNHB6	GB00B0CNHB64	Acc	I	L&G Cash Trust I AE

¹ Currency hedging intends to reduce the risk of loss from exchange rate fluctuations in the market. It would be like taking out an insurance policy against this happening so that any unfavourable change in a currency (for example, the dollar against the euro) would not seriously reduce the value of your investment.

Absolute return funds

Absolute return funds aim to deliver positive returns in any market conditions. This is in contrast to more traditionally managed funds that aim to outperform a benchmark such as an index or similar funds, but which can still have negative returns over a specified period.

It's important to note that although absolute return funds typically aim to achieve consistent positive returns in each year, this is not guaranteed and, in particular, returns may not be positive after charges have been taken into account.

Performance comparisons with other funds in the absolute return sector may be inappropriate due to the varied nature of the funds within this sector resulting in different benchmarks, risk profiles and timeframes for delivering returns.

Many absolute return funds will use derivatives to help in the risk management of the fund as well as for investment purposes.

Property funds

These funds invest in equities of real estate companies and may invest in real estate investment trusts, collective investment schemes and other types of investment. In difficult market conditions, these fund may not be able to sell a security for full value. This could affect performance and could cause the fund to defer or suspend redemptions of its shares.

Distributor requested funds

Distributor requested funds are a range of funds provided by fund managers together with a fund sponsor (which may be part of the organisation your adviser works for).

The investment objectives and risk profiles of the funds are set in conjunction with the fund sponsor. These funds tend to be either risk-rated funds and/or multimanagered funds. Generally, the fund sponsor also receives payments out of the fund charges in addition to any commission your adviser receives from us. The amount of any payments to fund sponsors is taken from the fund charges disclosed to you.

Omnis funds

The Omnis Multi-Manager and Omnis Managed funds are managed by PineBridge Investments and Schroders Investment Management respectively, in accordance with the investment objectives of the funds. The investment objectives and risk profiles of the funds have been set by the Authorised Corporate Director (ACD), Omnis Investments Ltd. As ACD, Omnis Investments Ltd is entitled to payment of an annual management charge which is deducted from the funds. Omnis Investments Ltd is part of the Openwork Group. The Openwork Group includes Openwork Limited, a network of financial advisers who may benefit financially from these payments. The amount of these payments is included in the fund charges disclosed to you and is not an additional charge.

Payment dates for Sterling Panel funds that distribute income

Each fund pays its income at various dates during the year as shown in this table. We receive this income and hold it until the next Sterling distribution date, 10 March, June, September and December. We will pay you income we receive in the previous three months at the next Sterling distribution. However, if you choose to reinvest the income in your account, we will reinvest it for you on the day we receive the income from the fund manager.

Notes

Other funds accumulate income within the fund and this increases the value of your account.

Generally you must hold units in the fund two months before the payment date to qualify for income. For example, if the payment date is 7 August you must have units in the fund on the previous 7 June. Where the funds pay monthly, normally you need to hold units at the previous month to qualify for the current month's payment.
